In case of a fire, winter storm,
hurricane, or any other disaster:

Call 508 775-1540

American Red Cross Disaster Services volunteer Jerry Mossey of South Yarmouth carries cots to the reception center at Camp Edwards, where the Red Cross helped welcome evacuees from Hurricane Katrina.

For:

- ✓ food, clothing, and temporary shelter for fire and disaster victims. Most victims have total losses and leave their homes with the clothes on their backs.
- ✓ immediate replacement of medications, eyeglasses, dentures and other personal items needed to make those first steps to recovery.
- ✓ rehab and nourishment to the victims, police, fire and emergency teams for fires, search and rescue, transportation disasters
- ✓ Support during chemical, biological, medical or nuclear attacks.
- ✓ More...

All provided totally free to those who need it.

The Red Cross is mandated by Congress to prepare and respond to disasters. But, we receive no money from Federal, State or Local government. We are a part of local emergency management and National Emergency Management through Homeland Security.

The Red Cross must rely on the generosity of people in our local communities for funding.

It costs between $200 and $1,200 a day to respond to an emergency.
You and your business can help and benefit with special recognition!
